

Reiki healing

Reiki... of the many techniques embracing Spiritual Healing, always remember that all connect to and come from the same source.

Having worked with many different healers and techniques including Reiki some very important aspects of concern have come to light. Both beginning and experienced healers alike is for them to become thoroughly convinced that this method or that technique is the ultimate end all method of healing. This is the same trap that happens to people in religion, business, politics or any other endeavor. Many teachings including some old techniques in their modern interpretation are incorporating some very detrimental paradigms. Some are presenting their teachings that produce very profound blocks for their practitioners with very negative implications for their clients.

Any method or technique that tells the healer, "You Are So Special", immediately puts the healers ego in a very judgmental and detrimental position. Everyone is Special, none above, none below any other, forgetting, not understanding or choosing to believe it is violating one of the basic tenets of most of the greatest masters. Each expression although different is still an extension of Creator. Getting rid of all ego is virtually an impossibility since the complete loss would lead to no action. Within the state of Pure Love the true healer finds all the undesirable attributes of the ego will cease automatically with no effort.

With any method or technique that says certain procedures must be followed and always produce the same results has little understanding of the processes involved. The true healer understands that they are just a conduit or vehicle for all the healing energies to be enhanced by. The more advanced a healer become the more they learn to bring the subject to the altar and keep out of the experts way.

If there is any advice to be found here it is this. Study every method and technique you can and after you learn all there is to know about them,,,,, Throw Everything You Have Learned Away !
